A results-oriented executive with nearly three decades of healthcare industry leadership experience and expertise, Kevin J. Slavin took the reins at St. Joseph's in December 2014. As top executive at St. Joseph's, he is responsible for the overall clinical, academic and operational functions of the 1,000-bed integrated multi-hospital healthcare system. Established in 1867 by its sponsors, the Sisters of Charity of Saint Elizabeth, St. Joseph's is the mission-driven medical, spiritual and economic foundation of the Passaic County region, dedicated to providing leading-edge high-quality healthcare with a special concern for the poor and underserved.

Nationally recognized for the excellence of its care by such organizations as U.S. News & World Report, CareGroup and Healthgrades, St. Joseph's is the only Catholic healthcare organization in the nation to be Magnet® Recognized for nursing excellence by the American Nurses Credentialing Center (four consecutive times since 1999) and earn ISO Quality Management System certification from DNV Healthcare, having demonstrated consistently high levels of conformance with all ISO standards for services provided across the healthcare system.

As a major teaching organization affiliated with a variety of medical schools, colleges and universities, St. Joseph's provides strong education and training curriculums in nursing and a variety of clinical professions. New York Medical College at St. Joseph's, a member of the Touro College and University System, is one of only four accredited hospital-based medical school campuses in New Jersey. St. Joseph's remains committed to training tomorrow's clinician-experts, today, and sharing its collective professional knowledge with the greater community.

"Academics are essential expanding components of St. Joseph's quality focused organizational structure and a vital aspect of our future vision," says Slavin. "St. Joseph's is a flourishing healthcare asset to the tri-state region and a future national healthcare industry leader."
